Zumwalt says Congress never fold

By United Press International
Retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt said today the Nixon administration failed to tell Congress about a 1973 secret agreement with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, promising the United States "respond vigorously" if Hanoi violated the Paris peace accords.

(Earlier story, p. 6)

"It said that we would respond vigorously in the event of major [U.S.] violations and that we would replace equipment being used by the South Vietnamese army," Zumwalt told a UPI's Richmond, Va., reporter in a telephone interview.

Wins job back

FREEHOLD, N.J. (UPI) — Patricia Endress, a college journalism teacher, has been awarded $64,000 damages by a superior court judge, who also ordered her reinstated at Brookdale Community College.

She was dismissed last June after she wrote an editorial criticizing the awarding of school contracts totaling $87,000 to a firm owned by a nephew of one of the college trustees.

Farm bill veto expected by Friday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's expected veto of an emergency farm support bill will come by Friday at the latest, according to White House aides.

The one-year bill would raise 1975 crop support loan and support "target" rates for wheat, feed grains and cotton. It would also raise supports for soybeans and dairy products.

Reverend asked

BOSTON (UPI) — Dr. Kenneth Edelin has asked for a reversal of his abortion-related conviction on grounds of a crime was pre-empted, committee, it is alleged.

Defense attorneys argued over the definition of manslaughter in connection with the death of a fetus. Edelin was convicted of the charge during an abortion involving an unmarried 17-year-old woman in 1973.

Thai sides await refugees at border

THAILAND (UPI) — Doctors and Red Cross officials waited in vain today at the Thai border for foreign refugees making an overland trek from the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh. At sunset the officials left, saying they would return Friday.

Officials of Cambodia's new Communist-led Khmer Rouge government would give no reason for the delay in reaching the border.

Seis deadline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary William R. Coleman, Wednesdays, said he is giving the Federal Aviation Administration 45 days to implement 18 air safety improvements recommended by a task force.

Perhaps the most controversial is the call for spot checks of pilot performance using information collected by two cockpit recorders.

Senate rejects balanced budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted today to adopt a spending target and a deficit for fiscal 1976 higher than President Ford said he would tolerate.

Before the vote, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Henry Bellmon, R-Okl., in unusually harsh language, berated Ford for proposing a deficit ceiling which Muskie called dishonest and Bellmon called "phony."

Approved by a roll call vote was a resolution proposing that in the fiscal year beginning July 1 Congress approve expenditures of $365 billion with a resulting $67.2 billion deficit.

Midwest firm may ease Gem medic insurance crisis

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Idaho malpractice insurance crisis may be over.

A midwest insurance company reportedly will offer malpractice insurance to 500 of the state's 800 doctors who will lose their insurance on June 1.

The official announcement from the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., St. Paul, Minn., is expected within a few days, and will be made through the governor's or insurance commissioner's office, according to Fred Shellman, Denver, general manager of the firm.

The cancellation of a majority of Idaho doctors' malpractice insurance has caused widespread concern throughout the state. Some doctors have said they would discontinue or curtail their practice if coverage is not available.

Shellman said his firm had been in "constant communication" with Monroe C. Gollaher, Boise, Idaho insurance director, regarding the problem posed when the Argonaut Insurance Co. cancels coverage June 1 for 500 Idaho doctors.

The malpractice insurance coverage is a national problem, according to local agents, but the timing hit Idaho particularly hard, since so many of the Gem State physicians carry their policies with the Argonaut firm.

An agent for the St. Paul Company said he understood Argonaut had lost at least $100,000 last year in malpractice lawsuits.

Local insurance agents say two other firms, Aetna Casualty and Surety and US Fidelity and Guaranty Co., are continuing to underwrite the policies they currently carry, but they will not assume any new clients because of the prohibitive costs in malpractice lawsuits.

Even if St. Paul will assume the new Idaho agents, there still is the long-range problem of excessive cost of the malpractice insurance being passed on to patients, agents say. They feel additional state legislation is needed to give relief to "phony losses," according to a Jerome underwriter.

Something must be done to prevent what is termed "frivolous lawsuits, such as limitations for what an individual can sue for pain-and-suffering," the agent believes.

A representative in Gollaher's office said today, "the state will not jeopardize the doctors" and while declining to confirm or deny the speculation said, "they will definitely have coverage."

The insurance business is regulated on a state level. In what one agent calls a "jealously guarded state right," the representative said the state insurance department is not responsible for insuring the doctors but that "everyone works together" on the current problem.

She said a hearing is under way today in Boise with Argonaut first over the Cancellation of the Idaho policies.

The representative said information of rates or categories of medical persons to be covered was "premature," but agents in the Magic Valley have indicated the rates will be "surprisingly good."

Agents said they expect official word from the St. Paul firm's Salt Lake City representative, possibly today.

Insurance pinch grows

By United Press International

Northern California doctors rebelling against increased malpractice insurance rates let their insurance lapse today and hospitals put emergency health care plans into effect immediately.

Argonaut Insurance Co. of Menlo Park, Calif., cancelled the group malpractice coverage of San Francisco-area doctors effective today and offered, in its place, individual coverage at sharply higher rates.

Hardest hit are anesthesiologists, who vow they won't pay 330 per cent higher rates for insurance and who, by law, cannot practice without insurance.

About 3,500 other doctors fees. Los Angeles anesthesiologists planned a one-day walkout next Tuesday to protest a possible 100 per cent boost in their malpractice insurance.

The California malpractice problem is the latest in a series of crises threatening to force doctors to leave or limit their practices, boosting hospital rates and putting some clinics on the brink of closing.

Darling Memorial Center of Detroit's Grace Hospital, the largest cancer treatment center in Michigan, may be forced to close at the end of June. The reason — Spelby Mutual Insurance Co. of Shelby, Ohio, has canceled the center's insurance.

Unless the Michigan law of malpractice is changed, we will be unable to see patients as of July 1," said Dr. Valerius K. Valtkyenius, chief of medicine at Grace Hospital.

Hospitals in the area restricted surgery schedules and warned of possible substantial layoffs of hospital employees.

The California legislature is debating new legislation that would ease the malpractice problem by requiring arbitration of many malpractice claims and limiting lawyers'

Filer's Shover retains office

FILER — A drive to recall Filer Mayor Paul Shover has failed with Filer residents voting overwhelmingly to keep him in office.

Over 80 per cent of the voters supported Shover during the Wednesday recall election with 239 voting against the recall and 58 for, with one ballot void.

Kelly Klaas, KEPN radio, however, reported after the election that an irregularity had occurred which could hinder the formal acceptance of the vote.

City Clerk Francis Wells confirmed today that the ballots, ballot stubs and registration book were all numbered in sequence. She said R. E. Rayborn, legal counsel to the city, would have to make a recommendation as to the validity of the case.

Rayborn said today he has informed the mayor and City Council, irregularities during the Wednesday election did not invalidate the election.

He said the Idaho Supreme Court in 1910 addressed itself to a similar case in Nez Perce County. The court held constitutional rights were not violated although there were irregularities and the election results stood, Rayborn said.

Rayborn said any citizen could file with a district court contesting the recall election. He said the election results would probably stand unless overturned by a court decision.

Chief Deputy with the Idaho Secretary of State, Jerry Hill, said today there is a basis for contending that the constitutional right of secrecy during the election has been violated.

However, he said a suit to that effect would have to prove the irregularity had an effect on the eventual outcome.

Wells said the ballots and the registration book would be locked up separately until it was decided whether the election is valid. Rayborn said it is up to the mayor and City Council to approve or disapprove the result.

House votes against aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The House, brushing aside an urgent appeal from President Ford, today voted against a bill authorizing $327 million in emergency funds for South Vietnamese refugees.

The Senate had approved the legislation Friday by a vote of 46 to 17.

The House action today followed an hour-long, split-debate during which Rep. Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, pleaded for passage.

In a letter to Speaker Carl Albert, Ford requested the House act quickly on the legislation.

Albert, Ford's top legislative aide, responded, "I will do my best to expedite the bill."

Red takeover celebrated

By United Press International

Tanks and trucks loaded with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong infantrymen rumbled through the streets of Saigon today in a combination May Day and victory Parade joined by nearly 3,000 students and youths, Japanese news dispatches reported.

Broadcasts by the Viet Cong announced "total victory" today in the Mekong Delta, the last pocket of South Vietnamese resistance. But the Japanese Kyodo news service said confusion remained in the predominantly Chinese Cholon sector of Saigon and that the military takeover of the area was delayed.

A Saigon Radio broadcast monitored in Bangkok called on the people to avoid such decadent and "American-like activities as brothels, dance halls and opium dens." Increasingly, anti-American broadcasts by Radio Hanoi demanded that the 7th Fleet "hand what it called the 'forlorn' evacuation of Vietnamese being rescued from a flotilla of small boats in the South China Sea."

One radio Saigon broadcast demanded that documents, property and "technological means" left behind by U.S. officials be turned over to the new government. It said violators would be "severely punished" — a Vietnamese-Communist euphemism for the death penalty.

UPI has five newsmen in Saigon — Alan Dawson, Leon Daniel, Paul Vogel, Chad Huntley and photographer Hugh Van Es. They have been unable to file since communications were halted shortly before 9 a.m. MDT Wednesday.

Japanese newsmen in Saigon were able to file dispatches through Japanese Embassy communication facilities. The Japanese said Vietnamese and foreign newsmen were required to obtain new identity cards and that the former press center was jammed by those newsmen.

Japanese press reports said Communist soldiers and guerrillas in uniform and civilian clothes were guarding the House of Representatives building and chatting with civilians.

Shortly after the demonstrations started near the presidential palace, infantrymen of the Provisional Revolutionary Government's armed forces began marching into Saigon, at around 9 a.m. local time, the reports said.

Classes will be limited to 35 students each and cost of the five days will be $35 of which $15 is due at the time of pre-registration. Additional information is available from Jan Mittelheide, 733-3654, extension 302.

Arrest law explained

BOISE (UPI) — Citizen's arrests should be executed only when assistance of law enforcement officials is not readily available, Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell said Wednesday.

In an opinion for Kootenai County Sheriff Thor Plaud, Kidwell and an assistant, Bill Payne, said the statute permitting such arrest must be construed strictly.

Before any private citizen executes arrest, he said, "he must be able to present, by sufficient evidence, proof that a public person was committed or attempted in his presence and that person arrested is guilty of the offense."

Nominee

MEDAL OF Honor winner Lt. Gen. Louis Wilson will be nominated by President Ford as commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps at the end of this year. Wilson, 55, is currently commander of the Fleet Marine Force. (UPI)

305 signed up for TF tot class

TWIN FALLS — A pre-registration campaign in the Twin Falls School District has signed up 305 5-year-olds for the new kindergarten program, Supt. George Staudacher said Wednesday.

Registration will continue until the first day of classes this fall, and kindergarten enrollment may climb to about 400 by that time, Staudacher said. "We're planning upwards to 400 and will be ready for that many," he added.

The sign-up push also brought in 354 first graders.

Staudacher estimated that current enrollment for both kindergarten and first grade represent about 75 per cent of the total number of students that will enter the grades this fall.

"We're not really surprised by the number," Staudacher said.

CSI lists events

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho officials have released a schedule of events at the school for the remainder of the week.

There will be a student senate meeting at 6 p.m. tonight in the student conference room. The Twin Falls Poets Concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. tonight at the Fine Arts Auditorium.

The State Association of Registrar and Admission Officers will meet from 9 a.m. to noon Friday at the student conference room.

CSI will compete in the Intermountain Division Track Meet Saturday at Logan, Utah.

The CSI choir will present a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Fine Arts Auditorium.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — "Lists of automobile registrations compiled at the time and expense of Idaho taxpayers are being sold to automobile dealers and insurance companies.

The Idaho Department of Law Enforcement sells its auto registration lists to the R. L. Polk Company — and the proceeds are applied to the state motor vehicle fund. Station KTFI reported.

In Twin Falls County, the lists are compiled by a sheriff's deputy and sold to insurance companies and car dealers at a cost of approximately $300 per volume. The deputy compiling the list gets the money.

Car dealers and insurance companies alike use the lists in establishing sales leads.

State Finance Director Tom McElroy told KTFI that the practice is legal. Idaho Law Enforcement Director John Bender concurred.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Merle Leonard said he was totally unaware that such a practice was taking place.

DR. JOHN ASHLEY, Boise, state health officer, discusses the new health planning federal legislation with Sally Donart, Ketchum, at the Twin Falls County Mental Health Association membership dinner Wednesday night. Mrs. Donart serves on both the national and state mental health association boards and is a former state president.

Health planning
chances dwindleBy LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "This is your last opportunity for effective local health planning," a state official told the Twin Falls County Mental Health Association membership dinner Wednesday night.

Dr. John Ashley, Boise, state health officer and administrator of the division of health for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare (DHW), explained the National Health Planning and Resource Development Act at the association's annual event held at the College of Southern Idaho cafeteria.

He said steps can be taken to overcome what he termed "bad effects" of the law if local health leaders can "show statesmanship" and get together to make long-range plans for what kind of health services will be needed in the future.

"I can't tell you what you need in the Twin Falls areas," he said. If local communities will become involved in their own planning "Boise or Seattle can't tell them what to do," he said.

Admitting he isn't "too happy" about the law, which was passed by this session of Congress, because it "takes responsibility for health services from elected officials into the hands of bureaucrats," Dr. Ashley said the major good thing about the act is that it requires needed long-range planning.

"If we're going to keep getting the federal money we have come to depend on, we have to play ball with the regulations," he said.

He stressed the new organization, a State Planning and Resource Development Agency which will implement the act on the state level, will be "very strong and we need to see that it gets citizen input."

The role of this agency will be "to put together a comprehensive health plan and act as staff to a board. Then, as another layer of bureaucracy, there will be a health state council," Dr. Ashley said.

The speaker said the federal legislation is designed for heavily populated states like California, New York and Illinois — where "they have many more bureaucrats and health services to deliver," not for small states like Idaho.

Gov. Cecil Andrus currently is involved in the first step of the legislation, which is deciding how many health areas Idaho will be divided into for the initial planning.

Each governor then sends this information to the secretary of the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department for approval before the state can progress with implementation.

"It's critical for you to realize that this agency will have comprehensive decision-making authority for all future health planning," the official said.

Dr. Ashley was introduced by state Sen. John Barker, Buhl, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Hansen exaggerates

BOISE IDAHO STATESMAN

Rep. George Hansen exaggerates the difficulty of complying with the 1971 Campaign Finance Act, which he was convicted of violating.

Hansen's conviction is being used as an excuse not to act on a bill that would ban the Idaho Sunshine Law, which requires disclosure of lobbying and campaign finances.

He said the campaign laws are so structured that they "can drive a man to the wall on a bookkeeping technicality." That comment glosses over an important point.

One of the counts on which Hansen was convicted, failure to report all of his campaign contributions in a report that he filed, might be classified as a bookkeeping technicality.

But the other count, involving his failure to file a required disclosure of contributions and expenditures within 34 days after the deadline, was not a bookkeeping error. It was not a technicality.

It was an obvious and gross violation of a law which has as its purpose letting the voters know the sources and the distribution of campaign finances. Not only was this report filed 34 days late, Ed Hansen did not file a fully accurate report of his finances until September — after the August primary election.

This law is not complicated that a candidate cannot reasonably be expected to comply. Meeting its requirements is no more difficult than an average itemized individual income tax return.

Hansen also said that he did nothing "intentionally wrong" six weeks before he filed the 34-day-late report that it was and that he was in violation of the law. This fact was widely reported in the Idaho news media long before the delinquent report was filed.

The late filing could have been unintentional, but it was not without the candidate's knowledge.

Hansen said he fears the campaign reporting laws will reduce participation in campaigns. No ordinary citizen was accused of wrongdoing in his case, only the candidate himself.

The law is simple enough that anyone who feels capable of serving in the Congress can be presumed to be capable of understanding the law and following its provisions.

One thing which has turned citizens away from politics has been the influence of money in campaigns. With disclosure the citizen at least has the opportunity to know the source of campaign funds and can make his own judgments. A campaign reporting law strengthens the political process. It doesn't harm.

Some of the Idaho Republican leaders now want a review of the state Sunshine Law. There may be some specific provisions of that law which should be reviewed. But the basic requirement of disclosure of lobbying and campaign contributions should not be tampered with.

What the Hansen case shows is not that disclosure laws are wrong, but that candidates should take them seriously. Hansen didn't get in trouble because the law is too strict, but because he didn't follow clear requirements of the law — including a violation that, on its face, appeared to be intentional.

Candidates should be able to live with disclosure laws easier than citizens can live with non-disclosure of campaign funding.

Those child abusers

Christian Science Monitor

American statistics of child abuse have risen steadily during the past three years, despite a growing public awareness of this and sometimes tragic problem.

A sign of the times is that, when a TV soap opera ran an episode on child abuse, there was an unusual number of viewer responses, including a plea for help from a child abuser. And, as reported in yesterday's Monitor, more and more parents who have abused their children are seeking help through Parents Anonymous.

Recession is believed to heighten the possibility of further increases in abuse, with parents taking out their frustrations on their children, and poverty opening the door to neglect.

Clearly continuing support must be given to detecting and eliminating cases of abuse through public and private efforts, such as those reported last fall in this newspaper's series, "Rescuing Abused and Neglected Children." And new government-funded programs should be used as a basis for long-term action — not allowed to dwindle into files already filled with studies.

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, passed early last year, was criticized by some child-abuse specialists for offering more research on the subject than the need was simply for more workers to protect children and salvage homes. But the programs now funded, and the kinds of programs solicited for the immediate future, indicate a spectrum of possibilities for an improved attack on the problem.

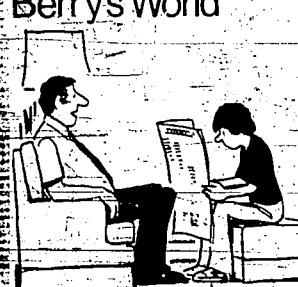

In December the government's new National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect gave $2.8 million in grants to 29 projects.

Last month the center invited proposals "due by May 2" for further programs, including innovative demonstration projects for special target groups — such as rural, military, and American Indian families — that are "generally not served" by community health and social services.

In sum, more than what reaches the headlines is and will be going on to reduce child abuse.

But it all must be accompanied by the broader effort to get at underlying causes — to strengthen the institution of the family, alleviate economic hardship, and foster that individual sense of morality and humanity which is the best preventive against abusing one's fellow, young or old.

Sleeper bill threatens union power expansion

WASHINGTON — Every Congress has its "sleeper" bills — the measures that attract little notice until they climb out of committee and slip quietly through a drowsy chamber.

One such sleeper to keep your eye on is the bill to provide collective bargaining by employees of state and local government.

A number of states already have blundered into the traps being set by trade-unionism. The militant teachers' unions have been especially active. Sanitation workers, public health nurses, bridge tenders and other workers have demonstrated the power of organized labor.

Thus far, the efforts have been piecemeal. If the pending legislative proposals are written into federal law, we will have, for the first time, a national policy specifically authorizing trade-unionism and collective bargaining on the part of government workers. Such a time-bomb policy should be rejected out of hand.

The stakes are enormous. An estimated 14 million persons now are employed by government — 3 million at the federal level, 14 million on state, county and municipal payrolls. Between 1951 and 1972, government employment increased by 151 percent, and payrolls by nearly 600 percent. Not even the farm workers, still largely unorganized, offer such a rich potential to organized labor.

The impact of public service strikes is only part of the problem. The sleeping-bills would authorize both the union shop and the agency shop. Under a union shop contract, new employees must become union members within a stipulated time, usually 30 days, or be fired. Under an agency shop, every person in the bargaining unit must pay tribute to the union whether he belongs to the union or not.

To leaders of organized labor, civil service unions safeguard the public interest and contribute to the effective conduct of public business. Amplifying on this concept of "business," they insist that government today must be operated with business. School boards, budget offices, and "personal directors" must deal with employees on wages, hours, and work conditions. It is to negotiate on these matters that unions were born. So what's wrong with collective bargaining in government?

The short answer is that plenty is wrong with it. Government is not business. Taxpayers are not voluntary shareholders. Governments are vested with power to provide the vital services and to secure the rights of all people. That power cannot possibly be bargained away to organized labor.

The odious practice of compulsory unionism, bad enough in private industry, would be intolerable in government. Thirty-four of the 50 states now forbid such exertion of their public servants. But under the pending bills, this protection — this right "not to join" a union — would be wiped out. Given a weak or complacent city council, the union could take command.

This cannot be permitted to happen. A poll conducted by the Opinion Research Corporation in January found overwhelming sentiment against compulsory unionism in government. Even among union members, a "lopsided majority is opposed. The National Governors' Conference strongly condemned federal intervention. The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations urges protection of the right "not to join."

But in this Congress, the unions are riding high. Unless we are to look forward to government of the unions, by the unions, and for the unions, their power must be trimmed back to size.

Quick action course to end doubt

WASHINGTON — President Ford, who didn't want to be rushed into announcing his candidacy to succeed himself, may have to act sooner than he planned if the doubts that his is a caretaker administration.

Through his aides, Ford has struck out sternly against a NewswEEK magazine report quoting a "well-connected capital source" as saying that he will not run in 1976.

The aides see the report as calculated mischief by unnamed forces that want to "sabotage" his candidacy by scaring off money and supporters. The suspicion is that the rumour mills are filled by right-wing supporters of former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Newsweek's source made a case that Ford's political hands found almost impossible to refute at this stage: except-by-heated-denunciations.

The "case," as the source outlined it, was that Ford would make all the expected moves of a candidate, from organizing a campaign committee, as the new campaign reform law forces him to, to entering the New Hampshire primary.

The premise presumably would end at a convention time when Ford would stand down, leaving the field to others.

According to the magazine's source, Ford told a small group of his friends and associates that he would not run in the end because of his wife's health and his misgivings about the time and effort required to make a successful race.

To reveal his intentions now would be to invite all the handicaps of a lame-duck president, or as the magazine quoted its source, to compromise his credibility and diminish the authority of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

President Ford's aides have had to deal with equally Ford statements about his political intentions, such as his reminder in a CBS interview last week that he has not made "any categorical, legal determination that I will be a candidate."

They include the creation of a campaign committee, plans for raising money, and other activities associated with a candidacy.

If Ford becomes an active and persuasive candidate, according to political observers, he might inhibit the "testing of the water" by Reagan, Tennessee's Sen. Howard Baker, and others. He also would force Republican leaders around the country to make a commitment, lest they be suspected of favoring him.

Ford would not be confronted with this problem if he were not a product of the 25th Amendment, his aides concede. But because he has never run for a national office, has limited experience as a campaigner beyond his old Fifth District of Michigan and needs time to build up party support and enthusiasm — as well as because of the new law which requires early moves for fund-raising purposes — he may have to get into the race soon to stifle the rumors and head the potential competitors off at the pass.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

This analysis sounds cruel, said about anybody. It is hard to understand why, when said about Richard Nixon. Is there a more charitable explanation for his behavior during 1973 and 1974 when his party closed in that he was not in possession of his faculties? II. During those 18 months he had been making statements and speech decisions calculated toague the destruction of his presidency, could he have acted more brilliantly to achieve that end? Why should conservatives, shrill from reading his conclusions merely because it had been advanced by a political liberal? If John Osborne could be correct, and if he is, the judgment of Nixon, far from becoming more severe, becomes more charitable.

All of which reminds us that for all we know about Watergate in fact the great stain has not been told. It is this, what will Nixon do? Kissinger's prdding, have done, if his reactions had been healthy, when only a few weeks after the Paris Accord was executed, the North began its blant disregard of it?

My own information is that it was planned some time in April to paralyze Hanoi and Hanoi. If that had been done, not only would the North-Vietnam juggernaut have disintegrated an entirely new meeting would have attached to the concept of defense.

Remember, we are talking about a defense that was initiated by the China and Russia, and which was broken only as a result of their active collaboration. Thus to have acted decisively would have had not only the effect of saving South Vietnam, but of warning the Soviet Union and China that defense is what we have always insisted it is: an invitation to our two principal antagonists to cooperate with us.

Not an invitation to them to fish in troubled waters, to repeat the phrase President Ford used, thumping when last he addressed Congress. When he uttered those words, they were bereft of meaning. What Russian general or Chinese theorist has any reason, at this point, to believe that defense is in fact anything other than that — an invitation to profit from America's unilateral attachment to a will-o'-the-wisp?

This does not bring South Vietnam back to life, but it gives one an idea of the irreconcilable reaches of Watergate. It probably drove Nixon out of world politics. There is nothing here to explain the strange, perverse failure of Congress, or to lessen the pain our allies must feel. But if Henry Kissinger is free to tell all, we can hope that he would say something on this order.

And that he will remember that Congress must not ever again be taken for granted.

Hung shows aid letters

'Genuine' aid letters shown

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Nguyen Tien Hung, a member of the South Vietnamese Cabinet, says former President Nixon secretly committed the United States in writing to "swift and severe retaliatory action" if North Vietnam violated the peace accords.

The White House said those commitments were publicly announced at the time Congress reversed whatever promises existed in August 1973 by U.S. combat activities in Indochina.

On Wednesday, Hung released what he said were copies of two letters from Nixon to former South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, written in an effort to convince Saigon to sign the 1973 peace agreement which allowed the United States to withdraw its soldiers.

President Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said: "as far as we can determine they are genuine." One dated Nov. 14, 1972, said:

"You have my absolute assurance that if Hanoi fails to abide by the terms of this agreement it is my intention to take swift and severe retaliatory action."

Another of Jan. 5, 1973, said: "You have my assurance of continued assistance in the post-settlement period and that we will respond with full force should the settlement be violated by North Vietnam."

Nessen said, "I read the letters and I reviewed the public records in somewhat more detail than I did before, and I'm convinced that what we said at the time still holds today: that there is nothing in the letters to Thieu that differs in substance from what was said publicly."

One of those public statements was a joint communiqué between Nixon and Thieu April 3, 1973, which said violations of the agreement "would call for appropriately vigorous reactions."

Ford said April 21 that he had discussed the commitments with Nixon and reiterated what he has said: that the public record corresponds with the private correspondence in reference to the commitments, moral or legal or otherwise.

Hung acknowledged that it can be argued the congressional ban negated the promises. "However," he said, "it is unfair to a foreign country for the U.S. to make assurances in order to obtain something tangible and then later render the assurances moot."

"It can also be argued that in voting against military action in Indochina, the Congress was not aware of these assurances, nor of their implication to the survival of South Vietnam. If Congress had known it would have had to consider the consequences of its action in relation to the pledges to South Vietnam."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said April 9 that the United States made "secret agreements" with North Vietnam.

Insurance crises pinch US medics

the county for premiums of $500,000 a year, has refused to renew its policy because its losses tripled during the past year. The company's loss under the policy was estimated at more than $3.6 million.

Argonaut also has raised insurance rates for smaller hospitals across the nation by 300 to 1,000 per cent. The rate for Northwestern Hospitals in Minneapolis, Minn., has been tripled from $5,000 to $56,000 by Argonaut. The hospital hopes to pass on the increased rates through raising room rates for patients.

Argonaut, which also handles much of the malpractice insurance in New York state, has announced it is doubling rates there on July 1.

The New York State Medical Society Sunday approved a resolution calling on doctors to treat only emergency cases beginning if the state does not draw up an acceptable program for handling malpractice insurance.

The society has drawn up a plan to establish its own mutual insurance company to provide insurance and has opposed a legislative program to provide malpractice protection from a state fund or a joint underwriters association.

Malpractice rates for doctors and hospitals have increased sharply in less than a year, cutting deeply into physicians' earnings and boosting patients' bills.

Dr. Don Harper Mills of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, writing in the current edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association says nonavailability or prohibitively high costs of malpractice insurance pose the threat that "a substantial number of practitioners may cease caring for patients..."

Indiana Gov. Ollie Bowen, himself a physician, last week signed legislation aimed at meeting the problem of doctors forced to curtail their work for lack of insurance.

The Indiana law provides a basic $100,000 award limit for which the insured would be liable and creates a state fund which could provide, from doctors' contributions, up to $100,000 in additional benefits to an individual claimant in a malpractice suit.

Wisconsin was the first state in the nation to enact a malpractice risk-sharing plan. Legislators approved the measure overwhelmingly after doctors warned a high incidence of malpractice claims and high insurance "costs" forced their practices elsewhere. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey signed the bill into law March 13. The plan provides a risk-sharing plan for doctors unable to obtain private malpractice insurance.

The Nevada legislature is processing a package of bills setting up a quasi-state liability insurance association to set rates; issue malpractice insurance policies and pay claims. The money would come from a pool to which participating doctors contribute.

In South Carolina, pending legislation would set up a joint underwriters association to provide malpractice insurance coverage if the state insurance commission declares an emergency. All companies writing bodily harm liability policies, except auto liability underwriters, would have to participate in the association or would be denied a license to sell insurance in the state.

Several bills dealing with the problem have been introduced in the Washington state legislature, one proposes a medical injury compensation act, setting up a claims system similar to workers' compensation in an effort to take malpractice cases out of court.

In New Jersey, a special legislative study commission has been created to study malpractice insurance premiums.

A crisis cropped up in New Jersey when Argonaut threatened to cancel policies for 29 hospitals in the middle of coverage and asked for $10 per cent across-the-board rate increases. The New Jersey Hospital Association filed suit against Argonaut, but withdrew the suit when Argonaut withdrew. Its rate increase request was tabled and the planned cancellation of insurance for the 29 hospitals.

Oregon Medical Association Director, Robert Dernedde, reports a 100 per cent increase in malpractice claims in the past two years, saying the increased claims have touched off a substantial increase in malpractice insurance premiums.

Dernedde said the legislation to correct the problem was being drawn up in the Oregon House Judiciary Committee.

The Idaho Medical Association is considering forming a doctor-funded organization to handle large settlements, though a spokesman for the state medical association says several other alternatives were being investigated.

The California-Union Insurance Co., has given notice to Nebraska nurse-anesthetists that its group malpractice plan is being phased out. The action touched off a legislative proposal to provide emergency pool coverage.

April farm prices rise

By WILLIAM ROBBINS

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — Prices of farm commodities rose 4 per cent. in the month ended April 15, the Agriculture Department reported Wednesday, and a top departmental economist noted that the increase was focused largely in areas where it will be most quickly reflected at the retail counter.

Increased prices for cattle and hogs were among the main reasons for the rising average, but cotton, soybeans and grains also gained.

"Price changes for cattle and hogs came through the retail counter pretty fast," C. Kyle Randall, administrator of the department's economic research service, noted in a telephone interview, but he said the rise had been expected.

The increase reversed a five-month slide in farmers' prices but the April 15 level was still 8.1 per cent below the average of last October, before the decline began, and 7 per cent below the level of a year ago.

Randall said the farm-price rise would not change department economists' assessment of the outlook for food prices.

"Our original forecast was an increase in livestock prices in the second quarter," he said, "but we are standing by our prediction that retail prices from the first to the second quarter won't rise as much as they did from the fourth to the first quarter."

He said retail prices were expected to rise "something less than 2 per cent" in the second quarter. The increase in the first quarter was 2 per cent.

Coincidentally, the turn-in farm prices comes at a time when President Ford is expected momentarily to veto a bill to support farm prices and provide income protection for farmers.

The long slide in farm prices had helped stimulate the movement in Congress for the farm bill, which would increase both "target prices" and price-support loans for cotton and grains price supports for dairy products.

Hanoi benefits from Saigon aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The surrender of Saigon makes North Vietnam one of the biggest recipients of U.S. military aid in history.

Pentagon officials recently estimated that $3 billion to $5 billion worth of equipment was left in South Vietnam, which has received the most U.S. military assistance. Others were France, with $4.2 billion and Korea with $3.5 billion.

"If there is any logic to the domino theory," Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told the Senate Armed Services Committee recently, "it will be because we helped make Hanoi the strongest military power in Southeast Asia."

"I see no reason to give Hanoi a huge military aid program," he told Gen. Fred C. Weyand, the Army's chief of staff that some thought should have been given to getting the equipment out or destroying it.

Weyand later told Nunn privately that he, too, was disturbed. Nunn told UPI today that Weyand "saw nothing they could do about it unless they reintroduced U.S. military troops." The senator felt "it was the lesser of two evils to abandon the weapons."

Weyand said he hoped the South Vietnamese would destroy a substantial part of the equipment. "I hope they did, but I have very little confidence that they would do so," said Nunn.

Reports from Thailand said airmen led in about 125 planes, depriving Hanoi of a significant part of South Vietnamese Air Force. But the victors are believed to have inherited quantities of tanks, armored personnel carriers, artillery, ships and other equipment.

Pentagon officials said today they had no word on what the South Vietnamese had done to destroy their stocks before the surrender.

Appointment eyed

By Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Former Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, whom in 1968 nominated Nelson A. Rockefeller to be President, soon will be appointed White House liaison officer with the nation's governors.

The position is in the Domestic Council, which is headed by Rockefeller, now Vice President.

Shafer has been under a security check by the Federal Bureau of Investigation preparatory to appointment to the federal post. The assignment is expected to be announced prior to the 47th annual meeting of the National Governors' Conference, which opens at New Orleans June 8.

Shafer served as governor of Pennsylvania from 1967 to 1971. He has been practicing law at Meadville, Pa., and teaching at the University of Pennsylvania for the last year.

Zirconium spray studied by FDA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sale of aerosol antiperspirant sprays with zirconium is an unwaranted human experiment which could give American consumers hidden lung diseases, according to a new report.

The findings, part of a recommendation that such sprays be pulled off the market, is the final judgment of a panel of experts assembled by the Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA said Wednesday it will immediately investigate, and if warranted, will try to classify such products as "new drugs." It would force the manufacturer to submit a new application individually and as administrator of the Estate of Rodney Madron, deceased. Defendants in the case are the manufacturer, the distributor and the deceased.

The panel's report, which was released yesterday, said:

"The panel finds that the sale of aerosol antiperspirant sprays with zirconium is an unwaranted human experiment which could give American consumers hidden lung diseases, according to a new report."

The panel in its final report, expressed in more lengthy and stronger language what it told FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt in an unusual telephone call in March. It had urged him to act immediately because Carter-Wallace was about to market its product nationally, a move the company has since made.

Schmidt chose to wait for the final report. He said Wednesday he did not see that anyone had called the sprays an "imminent hazard" warranting immediate removal.

The committee said it could not prove that zirconium sprays "would not produce hidden lung disease in some subjects." Even if the disease is of very low incidence, it said, a sizable number of Americans are still running the risk.

"Continued marketing of zirconium-containing aerosol antiperspirants would constitute, in effect, a very prolonged clinical trial without the informed consent of the test subjects," the report said.

The problem is that the fine particles of zirconium, a metallic compound, can enter the lungs, where it could collect and cause tumor-like growths.

KH miss, Shenk exchange vows

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I entered the hospital for X-rays and tests for severe chest and upper back pain, and was told I was suffering from a combination of pleurisy and shingles.

The pain subsequently subsided with medication. However, every now and then it has returned. I sent for your booklet on shingles, which I found very informative, but I don't remember seeing anything about pleurisy. Would you please discuss it, its treatment and prevention? F.A.S.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I have chronic discomfort and often severe pain in the upper left chest and tip of the shoulder. The only conclusion seems to be that this is evidence of damaged tissue in the lining of the lung, which could be causing pleurisy. How is this caused, what are the treatments?

It seems that with all of the antibiotics available something could be done to help me. Could this condition become more serious? — B.K.

Lung lining problem

By George Thosteson

The pleura is the close-fitting membrane which encases each lung, an inner layer covering the lung and an outer layer lining the chest wall. The space between the two layers (the pleural cavity) is normally moist, thus permitting free movement of the lungs in breathing.

When these membranes become inflamed, the condition is called pleurisy, and there are several types and causes. Two primary causes are pneumonia and tuberculosis. Generally doctors distinguish between "wet" and "dry" pleurisy.

In the wet type, the volume of moistening liquid in the cavity increases abnormally, placing pressure on the lung involved, interfering with normal breathing, and causing the classic pains along the nerve trunks. When pus collects in the cavity, the condition is called "empyema," a more unusual serious condition.

In dry pleurisy, the pleural membranes become irritated and can rub against each other with the rise and fall of the lungs. The characteristic chafing produces a distinct and easily recognizable "friction rub" heard through the stethoscope, a classic symptom of this type of pleurisy.

Any disorder of the pleura (pronounced "PLOO-rah") can cause sharp, stabbing pains, although this is less pronounced in wet pleurisy because the chafing is not so much a factor.

It is important to learn the source of the infection, which usually responds to appropriate antibiotic. In F.A.S.'s situation, the shingles, if present, could easily mimic the pain of pleurisy, but shingles would be obvious because of the rash and blisters that accompany it. Shingles can leave a lingering, discomforting pain for many months after the onset.

The chest X-ray you had would reveal any serious lung disorder or any inflammation of the pleura, but it will help ease the pains somewhat, but if your case is severe you may require a chest strap to minimize chest movement. Pleurisy can produce pain in either or both sides of the body depending on whether it is "double" or "single" — that is, whether one or both lungs are affected.

The bride carried a white Bible which had belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Russell McMillan. It was accented with a bouquet of light pink roses with light and dark pink streamers dotted with apple blossoms.

Mrs. T. M. Timbers and Mrs. Cecil Bott arranged the bouquets for all the wedding party.

Mrs. Mark Shenk, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and Mark Shenk, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. Stephanie and Cozetta Shenk, nieces of the bride, and their mother, Mrs. Stephen Shenk, sang accompanied on the organ by Maxine Hooley, piano.

Dinny Lawson, Boise, neophyte of the bride, was the ring bearer. The rings were pinned to a light pink pillow lined with dark pink lace with velvet ribbon knotted over them. It was made by Mrs. Cecil Bott, Mr. and Mrs. Bott stood with the couple as adopted grandparents. At the reception following the ceremony, the bride's table was covered with a white crocheted cloth over pink. The cloth belonged to her mother.

It was centered with a four-tiered cake decorated with pink and white lilies of the valley, white leaves and pink roses.

It was topped with miniature cherubs in front of a trellis draped with white net and pink lilies of the valley. The trellis was flanked with a pair of golden rings. The cake was made by Mrs. Horace Lipe of Hagerman and decorated by Mrs. F. C. Anderson of King Hill.

Mrs. Lipe cut the cake, which was served by Mrs. Joseph Doyle of Glens Ferry, aunt of the bride.

The reception table was covered with an heirloom handkerchief, white, tablecloth over light pink. The cloth was made by Mrs. Bott's grandmother in the late 1800s. A centerpiece of pink and white carnations was flanked by pink lighted candles.

Mrs. Clayton Hartwell, Meridian, aunt of the bride, was seated at the silver coffee service "belonging to Mrs. Hallie McFee of Glens Ferry.

Mrs. Phillip Lawson, Eagle, aunt of the bride, president of the pug bow and Marie McCrae, Boise, cousin of the bride, registered the guests.

Mrs. Glenn Fuhrmann, Boise, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Stephen Shenk, Indian Cove, arranged the gifts.

All the women helping with the wedding also helped with the wedding of the bride's parents in 1953.

The bride, a freshman at the College of Idaho, Caldwell, was honored with a shower by college friends. She is a 1974 graduate of Glens Ferry High School. The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of the high school.

The couple will reside in Meridian where the bridegroom is employed by an oil company.

Carras seeks Jackie's hand

LONDON (UPI) — Daily Express columnist William Hickey said Wednesday that Greek shipping millionaire John C. Carras would seek the hand in marriage of twice-widowed Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Hickey said Carras, described as aged around 60 and one of the world's richest shipowners, and a friend of the late Aristotle Onassis, had told friends his next goal is to make Mrs. Onassis his wife.

The widow of the late President John Kennedy represents, as she did for "Onassis," a social Everest which the great wealth of Mr. Carras has never managed to obtain.

Hickey said Carras' first revealed his marriage plans to friends at a lavish party he gave in Rome. Carras also has homes in London and Athens, owns a private island and a luxurious three-masted schooner named the Carita.

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Leroy S. Smith, Snowflake, Ariz., announced the engagement of their daughter, Tomie, to Frank J. Knight. The couple plans a May 16 wedding in the Mesa LDS Temple, Mesa, Ariz. The couple will be honored that evening at a reception in Snowflake and at an open house May 24 in Provo.

Knight is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mac M. Knight, Twin Falls.

Total government control reality soon in US

TWIN FALLS — "Total government communism is well on the way to becoming a reality in the United States," according to Patrick Mahoney, Bedford, Mass., a researcher for the John Birch Society.

Mahoney spoke at a public meeting sponsored by the society Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn.

He served 22 years in the U.S. Air Force before retiring in 1970. His address included a discussion of "what I saw in the Korean War and four years in Southeast Asia attached to special forces in cover and overt operations behind the lines."

"What I saw in those years in the Pacific ... relate to steps that I see happening that show total government communism as well on the way to becoming a reality in the United States," Mahoney said.

"Every single day we're getting more federal government pre-empting not only the local government but also controlling our lives from cradle to grave," he said.

"Basically an examination of a telephone book 25 years and today under U.S. government agencies will open the eyes of anybody who cares to look ... It shows that the president of the United States has more power in his hands today than Hitler did when he took over Germany in 1933."

"OSHA, EPA and the Food and Drug Administration — a lot of these government agencies have been created specifically for the purpose of pre-empting the rights of the states to govern themselves," he said.

The legislators who create the agencies are exempt from many of their controls, Mahoney added. "Congressmen and senators and their staffs do not play Social Security. They have a very lucrative retirement system and $30,000 people back there. In Idaho you have social insecurity when none of the money that you put in is put into a definite fund for retirement."

Kindergartens discussed in Blaine County

HAILEY — Kindergarten in Blaine County hangs in balance with an override levy about the best hope to ever have the program here.

Haley and Bellevue parents and teachers met with the Blaine County School Board Tuesday night to discuss kindergartens.

A meeting with Ketchum residents is scheduled for 8 tonight at Hemingway Elementary School.

A hand count at the meeting Tuesday night showed almost an even split of people wanting kindergartens this year as wanting them in 1976. "The highest vote count was registered in favor of a bond issue or no override,"

The general consensus showed most people wanted permanent kindergartens built onto existing structures in the county. A few people thought temporary housing in trailers could solve the short-term problem.

School board members told the audience the electorate's victory of a $4 million bond expansion program last year was a mandate to decrease elementary grade student teacher ratios.

Although new conditions are being constructed at each school in the county for a new high school is being built, the some thought might be put into construction of temporary quarters.

Superintendent of schools Wayne Faig said trailers could be purchased for from $11,000 and up a piece. There are also buying and leasing plans that will install prefabricated or frame constructed buildings for $20,000 each, he said.

He said a bond issue to construct permanent frame quarters or the installation of permanent prefabricated buildings would probably be the best investment for a program. The district has some accumulated funds, he said, which will be used for negotiations for teachers' salaries now in progress. He estimated Blaine County's share of state funding for kindergartens would be $34,000 which would not be enough to start a program in 1975.

An emergency levy could bring in $40,000 a year. The state may supply the $34,000, but that is not enough to cover the initial cost of salaries, supplies, capital outlay and transportation, according to a cost analysis breakdown prepared by the district.

Hair clippers gather in Ketchum

KETCHUM — The Idaho State Barbers Association will hold its 25th annual convention Sunday and Monday at the Holiday Inn here.

Ralph Bowman, Boise, associated with the Dale Carnegie course, will be the principal speaker at the banquet at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The convention opens at 9:30 a.m. Sunday with State-Bar E.V. McNamee giving the welcome. Demonstrations on hair styling are scheduled during the afternoon and a business session Monday will conclude the two-day conclave.

Leon Capell, Pocatello, is state president and Earl Clontz, Gooding, is in charge of arrangements.

Power line proposed in Salmon

SALMON — An underground power line is to be installed by Idaho Power Co. from Williams Lake to Lake Mountain to serve the proposed aircraft navigational facility scheduled to be constructed atop the mountain by the Federal Aviation Agency.

Ken Wilson, Pocatello, Idaho Power Co. engineer on the power project, said now Monday that preliminary surveying on the line has been completed.

Honorable Roy Taylor, Chairman
April 24, 1975

I know something about the Middle-Snake, that have already been taken over, by the federal government under condemnation proceedings. I shall always regard this as an unwarranted use of federal power which destroyed productive ranch operations for 10,000 sheep and 2,000 cattle. These ranches are in an area that was already 90% federally owned, thus further reducing the tax base in states where taxable lands are substantially less.

I know, from personal experience, that in a critical water year, the power boats in regular service cannot make the river run. One year the river was so low that the wool clip from 3,000 sheep lay on the river bank in original bags for six months awaiting transportation of the wool to Lewiston. The Middle Snake flows river boat without considerable loss in the summer months of a critical water year if we are already fully committed in the river run. Irrigation upstream and navigation on the Middle Snake are incompatible. One or the other must yield.

Let me review with you certain facts that are self-evident. You and I know, that irrigation is a consumptive use, and the stream flow.

In the future would be further reduced by the Federal Power Commission. Thus are incompatible. One or the other must yield.

The primary purpose of this bill is to "preserve and enhance" the values of a free flowing "Wild" river.

The Secretary of Agriculture will administer the Middle Snake whose waters are flowing have an ominous flow in that hallowed 101-mile section of the Snake River flowing upstream.

We are moving inexorably toward a confrontation between recreation boaters on the Middle Snake and the irrigators upstream. The recreation boaters derive their authority from the constitutional power of the Federal Government as they have acquired under state law.

We must not forget that no Congress can bind succeeding Congresses, and that the final interpretation of the laws that Congress passes resides in the Supreme Court of the United States.

When litigation reaches the Supreme Court, as it most certainly will, the Court is not likely to subordinate a "Wild" River in a National Recreation area, to unlimited depletion of the river flows by irrigators upstream whose water rights have been perfected under state laws. Thus the so-called protective language purporting to guarantee upstream water rights, both present and future, and the additional protection that no minimum flows shall be required, fall far short of removing the apprehensions that many of us have about the legislation.

Now, a personal appeal. I know you are a man of high principle. We served together on the Public Land Law Review Commission. I have great respect for your competence and your integrity. But imagine, if you will, that political fortunes have changed control of the House, that an Idaho Congressman is chairman of your subcommittee, that a bill involving the use of your greatest river in North Carolina is pending, that every House member from North Carolina has joined in a request for hearings on such a bill in your state. If all this were true, how would you then explain to your constituents that North Carolina hearings were not possible.

Best personal regards,

Sincerely,
Len B. Jordan
U.S.S. Retired

"I have sent a letter to the Honorable Roy Taylor, Sub-Committee Chairman, and would like to share part of it with fellow Idahoans because I am so deeply concerned about the threat to Idaho's water, which is contained in House Bill 30."

Len B. Jordan

WHY FEDERALIZE IDAHO MORE

when it is already two-thirds (65%) federally owned and controlled: To send our Hell's Canyon and all of the Snake River water back to Washington for control is something we can ill afford here in Idaho.

House Bill 30, now in Committee, contains that threat.

So you, Idahoans, must be heard...now!

This Hell's Canyon National Recreation Area act threatens a take-over of Idaho's resources and water rights. You can be instrumental in stopping it. Your help is needed in the face of several significant misunderstandings about the act as well as grossly unfair lack of input to the committee from Idahoans who would be most affected by the passage of H.B. 30.

LET'S HAVE HEARINGS in southern Idaho. Committee members in Washington have been led to believe that sufficient Idaho Hearings have taken place. No so. The last Congress, with a similar bill, held hearings in Lewiston only in 1974. But it is SOUTHERN IDAHO THAT WILL BE MOST AFFECTED by passage of this legislation. It is the upstream cities, towns, farms and industry that will be most affected by the water regulating effect of a National Recreation Area in Hell's Canyon and its minimum flow requirements. A recently completed study of reclamation projects underway along the Snake, including upstream irrigation developments, show that ALL available water will be needed.

That means jobs to southern Idaho...many in agriculture, many in industry.

The Snake River is a working river. It must keep people working.

It must remain uncontrolled by Washington.

THIS SO-CALLED PROTECTION that proponents say has been built into H.B. 30, appears to be as unreliable as similar protective language has been in at least several other situations like this. In these cases in the west, protective language asserting the supremacy of state water law over other national interest has not been held valid (in Montana, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico). Those in Idaho who are pushing for passage of H.B. 30, perhaps sincerely believe that protective clauses are sufficient to assure Idaho control of the water but history has proven otherwise. The danger is real.

Future national priorities will inevitably threaten Idaho's economy along the upstream Snake. An economy that provides jobs.

AN AREA OF LIMITED USE results from a National Recreation Area designation such as is proposed for Hell's Canyon. The area will be closed off to all but the relatively few hardy souls who backpack and run rivers.

A truly democratic use of the canyon is one with access so the majority of all citizens can enjoy its benefits, be it development for recreation or for jobs. That is highest and best use.

Only in this way does it become an area for the majority instead of for the limited few.

YOU MUST WRITE A LETTER to Chairman Roy Taylor, whose address is listed below. In it simply insist on a basic American right...the right to be heard. Ask for hearings in southern Idaho concerning H.B. 30, Hell's Canyon National Recreation Area act.

No one can be against that.

Not even proponents of the bill.

So write.

TODAY...NOW...WRITE THAT LETTER. BE HEARD.

3 file for TF seats

TWIN FALLS — Only three nominating petitions for the May 20 Twin Falls School Board election have been filed by this morning, according to J. T. Anderson, clerk of the school district.

The filing deadline is 5 p.m. Friday. Lee Edredge, Gary Chester and Victor J. Smith have filed for election to the zone 2 trustee seat. No petitions have been received yet for the zone 5 seat, according to Anderson.

The trustee posts representing zones 2 and 5 are the only ones up for grabs in the election.

Richard Sayers, the zone 2 incumbent, has announced he will not seek re-election. Dr. Howard Runk, the current board chairman and zone 5 representative, said he will run for the post again.

Seniors social

Jerome meet tonight

JEROME — Jerome Planning Council will hold its regular work session at 8 p.m. today in the Jerome County Courthouse. Pam Smith, coordinator, said tonight's meeting will deal with commerce, housing and population.

3 file for Jerome seats

JEROME — Three nominating petitions have been filed for trustee seats in the Jerome School Board election May 20.

Petitions have been filed by Lyle Van Orman, present board chairman; zone 3; Cheryl Hyman, seeking re-election in zone 2, and Jerry Calen, seeking a one-year term on the board from zone 4.

The deadline for nominating petitions is Friday.

2 incumbents file at Hansen

HANSEN — Two incumbents have filed for re-election in the May 20 Hansen school trustee election.

Deadline for candidate filing is 5 p.m. Friday and as of this morning there were no contests. Nominating petitions have been filed by Harold Miller Jr., trustee in zone 1, and Cecil Stanger, zone 2.

2 seek Buhl trustee seats

BUHL — Two candidates have filed for re-election to the Buhl School District board of trustees.

According to Secretary Sandra Wagner, three spots on the school board are open, but only two candidates, George Atkins, the incumbent in zone 5, and John Honcik, zone 1, have filed for re-election.

The filing deadline is 5 p.m. Friday.

The other seat coming vacant on the board is zone 2, Mrs. Wagner said.

She said Derek Cantrell, zone 2 incumbent, has not yet filed for re-election.

No petitions filed at Mertaugh

MERTAUGH — As of today no interest had been shown in the May 20 school trustee election in the Mertaugh district.

Two vacancies on the board are to be filled.

Robert Allred, zone 4, and Ralph Broedding, zone 1, hold the expiring terms. As of this morning neither had filed for re-election and no new candidates had filed. School officials said they expect the two incumbents at least will file by the 5 p.m. deadline Friday.

2 incumbents file at Filer

FILER — Both incumbents with seats coming vacant have filed for re-election to the Filer School District Board.

According to Filer High School Principal Ed Marshall, both David Chadwick, zone 5, and Al Ochsner, zone 3, have filed petitions for re-election.

Both are unopposed, Marshall said.

The deadline for filing petitions of candidacy is Friday at 5 p.m.

Elections will be held May 20.

Two arrested

TWIN FALLS — Two young men were arrested by Twin Falls city police early this morning and charged with first degree burglary.

Defective Capt. Tim Qualls said the two are Bryan Keith Franklin, 18, and Allen Lynn LaMarche, 18, both Twin Falls. Qualls said city officers surprised the pair in Dell's Distributing Co. warehouse at about 12:29 a.m. Nothing was taken from the building by the time officers arrived.

Qualls said both are scheduled to appear in magistrate court later today.

Gooding seats up for grabs

GOODING — Two seats on the Gooding School Board will be up for grabs in the May 20 trustee election.

The seats are currently held by Dick Graves, zone 2, and Claude Scanlon, zone 3. The school office does not know if any nominating petitions for the two seats have been filed, Zella Burris, the superintendent's secretary, said this morning.

She said the names of candidates would be released after the deadline has passed for filing nominating petitions. The deadline is Friday.

No interest shown in Wendell vote

WENDELL — No nominating petitions for a single seat on the Wendell School Board have been filed by this morning.

Ward Melan is the incumbent trustee for the West Point zone. His seat will be up for grabs in the May 20 board election.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions is Friday.

1 contest open in Richfield

RICHFIELD — One contest has developed in the Richfield school trustee election of May 20.

School board chairman Grant Flavel is seeking re-election in zone 3 and is opposed by Carol Denner, a new candidate. Both had filed petitions as of this morning.

If the other board vacancy, incumbent Peggy Robinson is seeking re-election, candidates have until 5 p.m. Friday to file nominating petitions. Mrs. Robinson is currently serving under appointment and will be running for the remaining two years of the term.

2 seats open at Valley

VALLEY SCHOOL — Two seats on the Valley School Board will be decided in the May 20 trustee election.

Incumbents from both the Hazellton and Eden districts have announced they will not seek re-election.

Keith Huelig and Kay Mecham have filed petitions for the Hazellton seat. Berwyn Musmann, Edwin Bruns and Glenn Rees have filed for the Eden trustee post.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions is Friday.

8 MV schools to drop program

TWIN FALLS — A three-year-old "exploratory" vocational training program for students from eight Magic Valley High Schools will be dropped this year, according to Doyle Simcoe, director of special services for the Twin Falls School District.

The program might be revived next year, however, if the eight districts can contribute more local dollars and depend less on state funding.

The Idaho Department of Vocational Education recently notified the districts that state funding for the program would be cut to $40,000 this year from the current level of about $65,000.

Representatives from the districts, "complaining" that state funding must be hiked to about $83,000 to maintain the program, protested the cut in a meeting at Boise last month.

The state agency refused the budge, however, and the districts have agreed to drop the program and study the possibility of reviving it next year.

The program has included about 150 students each year, according to coordinator F. C. "Skip" Avril. Simcoe said about 35 students from Twin Falls High Schools are currently enrolled. Other participating districts are Jerome, Wendell, Buhl, Castleford, Hansen, Mertaugh and Kimberly.

Avril said the hike in state funding was needed to rent more teaching space at the College of Southern Idaho, where the program has been housed and to hire two or three full-time instructors.

Avril said the state wants to "even" the districts of state funding and "have them start picking it up dollar for dollar."

If it is started again, the program probably will be maintained at CSE, according to Avril. "I think we'd probably explore a central vocational school concept," he said.

Such a concept might include running the vocational classes all day with three or four-hour blocks for each student.

Current courses in the program include auto-body, auto-mechanics, law enforcement, drafting, health occupations, welding, electrical work and upholstery.

Single Cassia hopeful

BURLEY — With less than 48 hours left to file a petition, only one candidate has filed for one of two openings on the Cassia County School Board.

Gerald Frost, Burley, filed a petition last week for the vacancy created in zone 3 when Sam Saldana, the board's only citizen member unexpectedly resigned.

In the meantime, no candidates have filed for the zone 5 seat held by Charles Ward.

Ward's term expires this year. By this morning he had not filed a petition for re-election.

Frost, a lifetime resident of the Burley area, is the training director of One-Ida Foods, Burley. He has worked for the company since 1960.

Frost attended two and one-half years of college and the Salt Lake School of Electronics. He said he favors kindergartens since they provide children with an opportunity for a good start in life.

Frost said the school program should fit the needs of all children, regardless of race or background. "I feel the bilingual course would be of benefit to all children and help to narrow any understanding gap between people," he said.

Frost has six children, the oldest married and the youngest to attend kindergarten in the fall. Frost and his wife serve together as the president of the Miller school PTA. He is active in the LDS Church.

Norland men seek posts

RUPERT — Two Norland residents, Russell Mohiman and Barbara Belnap, have filed petitions for the May 20 Minidoka School Board election.

The two candidates are vying for the zone 5 trustee position vacated when incumbent Sherrill Stallings said he would not seek a third term.

Other potential candidates have until 5 p.m. Friday to file a petition for the board from zone 5.

Mohiman, who describes himself as "a real staunch believer in vocational education," was the first of the candidates to file.

Mohiman said the vocational education program should be available to take care of students not interested in books alone.

Mohiman moved to Minidoka County as a homesteader in 1885. He has seven children, three of them students in the Minidoka schools.

Mohiman has served on the A and B Irrigation District board of directors and was a member of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce and Toastmasters Club.

Opposing Mohiman is Barbara Belnap who filed a petition for the vacant trustee's seat Wednesday.

Belnap, 33, has lived in Minidoka County for 20 years. She said she is running because she is interested in the schools and would like to work for cooperation between teachers, parents and the school board. "I think we have a pretty good school system in the county," she said.

Belnap is now on the school system's test book review committee. She is trying to keep controversy over textbooks from arising in the Minidoka District, she said.

Morgan trial proceeds; Bowman charge dropped

Orval Hansen testified Wednesday that he received the report of "financial information on George Hansen" from Morgan. He said the report appeared on his desk one day without identifying marks, except for George Hansen's name. After a telephone conversation with Morgan, Orval Hansen said he was sure that was the source of the report.

Hansen said he asked neither Morgan nor anyone else to obtain the report. He said he spent little time looking over the report and turned it over to John McGarry, chief investigator for the House Administration Committee.

Keeping it, he said, might have amounted to an "obstruction of justice on my part."

In a deposition read to the court, Morgan said that he got the report after a telephone conversation with Mrs. Bowman. Morgan said that Mrs. Bowman said that Orval Hansen, a member of the House Administration Committee, would like a credit report on George Hansen. But he said she did not say who exactly in Orval's office requested the report.

Taylor would not dismiss the case since there "may be enough evidence" to convict, "whether the jury finds it sufficient to convict is something else," he said.

The report had gone anywhere when Orval Hansen had received it already and his cutting out his name identification on the copy of the report given to the congresswoman, Dennis said.

Taylor would not dismiss the case since there "may be enough evidence" to convict, "whether the jury finds it sufficient to convict is something else," he said.

Speaking for himself, Barchas said he could not believe the U.S. attorney could have held a "genuine feeling that Rose Marie Bowman was guilty of a crime." Under these circumstances, pursuing criminal charges against her "could be construed as a violation of the canon of ethics of prosecuting attorneys," Barchas said.

Prosecuting attorney Mike Williams had no comment on the matter.

Olsen said,

Dan Dennis, U.S. prosecuting attorney, said that in many years of business with the Credit Bureau, Morgan never requested a credit report, for other than a business purpose. He said that several bits of "circumstantial evidence" showed that Morgan knew she should not have the report.

This evidence included Morgan's denial that the report had gone anywhere when Orval Hansen had received it already and his cutting out his name identification on the copy of the report given to the congresswoman, Dennis said.

Taylor would not dismiss the case since there "may be enough evidence" to convict, "whether the jury finds it sufficient to convict is something else," he said.

Rudy Barchas, deputy attorney general and spectator at the trial, questioned whether the U.S. prosecutor had violated the code of ethics in bringing charges against Mrs. Bowman following the hearings Wednesday.

Speaking for himself, Barchas said he could not believe the U.S. attorney could have held a "genuine feeling that Rose Marie Bowman was guilty of a crime." Under these circumstances, pursuing criminal charges against her "could be construed as a violation of the canon of ethics of prosecuting attorneys," Barchas said.

Prosecuting attorney Mike Williams had no comment on the matter.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day for you to drive into social interests that can motivate you to make improvements in your life. Let good friends know your true aims. Long-range plans for the future could bring abundance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get in touch with persons you know well and gain their aid for a plan you have in mind. Strive for increased happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact as many influential persons as you can. State your goals to them and gain the support you need. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day for expansion where your regular interests are concerned, so take initial steps early in the day. Relax tonight.

MOON-CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day for handing your personal responsibilities. Follow your intuition which is working well at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to a far better understanding with associates and make those changes that can yield better results. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have many accumulated duties to attend to and this is a fine time to get them behind you. Take time for health treatments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do something that will prove to loved one that you are truly devoted. Take no chances now where your credit is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discuss with family members ways to improve conditions at home. A new interest can bring more success in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact a person who understands your problem and will help you to clear it up properly. Be sure to keep appointments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think along more modern lines where finances are concerned and get better results. You can accomplish more if you try.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan the future wisely so you can get what you truly want out of life. Strive for happiness and be your true gregarious self.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time out from routine duties and think over how to gain your finest aims. Bring with the one you love a wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who wants to learn a great deal, but should be taught early in life to schedule activities well so the ideal can be blended with the practical. Give as much education as you can afford and success is assured. Sports are fine here.

YOU DON'T ordinarily see President George Washington depicted as a highly emotional man, it's a matter of record, however, that his voice trembled almost out of control in 1789 during the reading of his first inaugural address. Every word he said created a precedent, sure enough. Clearly, he knew that.

KINDLY EXPLAIN why just about all the great screen lovers have been dark-haired.

HOUSTON
Houston Street in New York City is pronounced "how-stun," not "hew-stun." And that's right, too. Came from two Dutch words "huis tuin" meaning "house garden." Used to be the road to the Bleeker family garden. That city in Texas was not named after a house garden, but after a fellow named Sam.

EMERGENCY ROOM statistics indicate the time of day you're most likely to crash into a glass door is the late afternoon.

BELGIUM organized an army in 1893 in the African Congo. Anytime a soldier died, his replacement took his name. And said replacement also inherited his gun, his wives, and his children. The record, which doesn't tell the truth, indicates that army didn't lose a man in 20 years.

TEENAGERS

When a surveyor took some time back polled teenagers nationwide as to just what they thought about this life, three out of 10 reported said quite seriously that they wished they had never been born. What do you make of that?

Idaho Temperatures

today's weather

Idaho temps begin slow climb

Twin Falls, northside, Burley. Friday in the low to mid 50s. The outlook for Saturday, partly cloudy. Symbols: High pressure prevails over the northwest this morning. Skies are generally fair over the southwest portion of Idaho, but partly cloudy over the remainder of the state. Temperatures will continue a slow upward climb with temperature readings into the 50s and 60s today; an increase of three to five degrees each of the following days through Sunday.

On Friday, a weak Pacific front will approach the coast. Idaho can expect only high clouds out of the system. The outlook over the weekend calls for dry weather to continue. However, the threat of rain returns around Monday.

Seasonal temperatures are expected during the extended period. The four-inch soil temperature in the Magic Valley over the past 24 hours averaged 48 degrees.

CSI divided twin bill at Ricks to begin playoffs

REXBURG — College of Southern Idaho and Ricks College split the first game of their sub-regional playoffs Wednesday afternoon.

Jurgensen retires

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sonny Jurgensen, a poised passer on field and sometimes a free spirit off, and Redskins coach George Allen couldn't agree on Jurgensen's worth under a new contract. The Washington quarterback — considered by the pros as one of the finest throwers in NFL history — finished out a $120,000-a-year contract Wednesday and became a free agent.

It became a bargaining session between two persons of different life styles on field and off. Jurgensen, a Scotch drinker and a go-for-broke passer, and Allen, who dotes on ice cream and plays cautious, never came close to terms on a new contract. In Allen's view, the 19-season veteran was an unaffordable luxury as a backup quarterback to No. 1 Bill Kilmer at such a salary range.

Free agents bloom among NFL ranks

NEW YORK (UPI) — A group of National Football League die-hards hum a new theme song Thursday: "Hurry, man, it's the first of MAY and we're to a bunch of free agents today."

Joe Namath leads the chant of the two dozen top pro footballers whose option year of their contract expires Thursday.

Namath, who once signed a celebrated $400,000 contract to quarterback the New York Jets, possibly is headed for the World Football League, where a $4-million package awaits.

Sonny Jurgensen, a 41-year-old quarterback who played 18 years in the NFL, had his option day, but instead is opting for release rather than try to make a new deal for himself.

The "new" WFL collared a

CSI trailing 5-0 early, came back on three homers to win the opener, 10-5, and Ricks, bouncing ahead 10-1, hung on to claim the second 10-7.

The two were scheduled to play a twin bill at Cowley Field in Twin Falls Thursday afternoon, either team needing two victories to gain the one berth available in the regional tournament.

Vargardson was the chief problem for CSI all day. He plated the first run with a single in the first and added a homer during a three-run third inning. Jenkins cracked a home in the second.

But once reliever Stover made the scene, Ricks won four hits. Meanwhile, Scott Becker got CSI going with a three-run homer after hits by Fandl and Morgan. In the fifth, Gilbert singled and Joe Velasquez homered to tie it.

The Eagles erupted for five runs in the sixth as Becker walked and Gilbert, Velasquez and Bob DePasquale collected hits worth two runs. Morgan then belted a three-run shot in the second. Jenkins and Arvin each drove in two runs with hits in a four-run fourth inning that moved Ricks out of the seventh.

CSI, with an unearned run in the fourth, came back in the fifth when Gilbert plated two with a hit. Trammel drove in another in the sixth and Morgan connected for a three-run homer in the seventh.

Derby field to be completed Thursday

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Everything from the condition of the track to each horse's great-grandmother has been examined for its possible effect on Saturday's 101st Kentucky Derby, but a new source of conjecture will arise Thursday morning with the final settling of the field and the drawing of post positions.

Fourteen horses are considered definite starters in the $125,000-ridged, 1½-mile Derby, with three more undecided as yet.

Despite "Foolish Pleasure's" sparkling record of 10 victories in 11 races, John L. Greer's colt is far from a prohibitive favorite.

Blue Grapes States winner Master Derby and the Darby Dan Farm's entry of Prince Thou Art and Sylvan Place are expected to receive strong support.

Of the three uncertain starters, John W. Mecom, owner of Rushing Man, seems the most likely to decide to fork out the $4,000 entry fee required by 9:30 Thursday morning. And, for every horse to start Saturday, there is an additional fee of $3,000.

If there is a field of 15, it will require the use of the auxiliary starting gate, with each trainer dredging the thought of his 3-year-old colt forced to come out of a separate gate.

And, if they had their druthers, most trainers were expressing a preference for drawing a post position between 3 and 10.

Although the crowd for Saturday is not expected to approach last year's record of more than 160,000 because of doubled ticket prices for the infield and a natural letdown after the 100th Derby celebration of 1974, there is a great deal of anticipation for this year's race with six horses' solid contenders.

Most of the competing trainers call "Foolish Pleasure" the horse to beat, but no one stands in awe of last year's 2-year-old champion.

Jerome teachers offered 8% raise

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome School Board, in a special meeting, has voted to offer district teachers new contracts with an 8 per cent pay increase.

Negotiating teams for the teachers and the school board have reached a deadlock in negotiations over teacher salaries.

The teachers have overwhelmingly voted to reject the 8 per cent raise and are asking nothing less than a 12 per cent increase, plus additional insurance payment, one day additional personal leave, plus a tenth step added to the present pay scale.

The trustees agreed to the $5 additional insurance and approved taking $10,000 out of the maintenance budget to pay the cost. The trustees have also agreed to the extra day of personal leave and have told the teacher's negotiating team they would be willing to add a tenth step to the pay scale, providing the money used for the additional step was taken from the money allotted for the 8 per cent increase.

Jack Thomson, trustee and board spokesman, said the district has presented its best offer to the teachers. He said it is all the money they have in the budget to offer.

Alvin Chojnacki, trustee who also serves on the negotiating team, said "there is no cushion in the budget. We have gone through every category and we are going to be operating on the bare minimum as it is. In order to meet the teachers' demands, we would have to do away with the maintenance of the buildings and possibly textbooks," Chojnacki said.

Lyle Van Orman, board chairman, said the board's team should meet again Monday with the teachers' team and try once more to resolve the conflict. "We can't go any higher than we have and if the teachers won't accept it, I guess the next step will be an arbitrator," Van Orman said.

He said if the arbitrator is unable to solve the differences it would go to a fact-finding committee, then to the state board, which would write a recommendation which the trustees don't have to accept.

"If this should happen, we would be right back to where we are now," Van Orman said.

In other business, the trustees set May 15 as the date for the district's budget hearing.

Van Orman reported that a state official for the school had been in Jerome and checked over the proposed kindergarten facilities. He said the official indicated that the only two possible buildings that might be accepted were the Episcopal and Presbyterian Churches.

Van Orman said the trustees will receive a letter from the Idaho Board of Education, either rejecting or accepting the two facilities. The trustees are delaying any action on establishing a kindergarten program in Jerome, according to Van Orman, and no action will be taken until more information about location and costs is compiled.

The Idaho Department of Transportation told the trustees in a letter that it did not feel a bike path on the north side of State Highway 25 from the city limits to the new high school site is feasible at this time unless an agreement could be worked out with the city to extend the pathway on past the city limits. The trustees will discuss the matter with city officials.

William Hopkins, maintenance supervisor, received approval from the trustees to let Bud Gelling assume the maintenance supervisor's responsibilities under Hopkins' supervision. Hopkins will become 65 in January and is expected to retire from his position.

Following the special school board meeting, the trustees met with selected contractors for the new high school. The trustees were told that the construction is a few days behind schedule due to bad weather, but the contractors are beginning to pick up the lost time and will continue to do so as long as the weather holds.

It was reported that 50 per cent of the underground electrical and plumbing work has been completed and that 99 per cent of the basement area has been excavated.

Lincoln treasurer sells food stamps

SHOSHONE — Food stamps will be sold through the Lincoln County treasurer's office beginning Thursday, according to a decision of the county commissioners Monday.

Previously the stamps were sold at First Security Bank but the commissioners decided to have the sale made through the courthouse after consulting with representatives of the Idaho Health and Welfare Dept.

In addition to acting as a board of equalization, the commissioners handled a few other items of business.

They agreed to allow purchase of a calculator for the assessor's office and set salaries for elective officers for 1976 the same as they now are, $7,800.

A meeting will be set with representatives of the Idaho Health and Welfare Dept. along with the Solid Waste Dept.

BIG BIRTHDAY SALE

AT SWENSEN'S MAGIC MARKETS

SOME SUPER (LOW) PRICES!

Since last year, when Swensen's Markets were 22 years old, a lot of things have happened...

Remember...

- President Nixon finally admitted the whole truth, (Remember the tapes?) lost his job and 4,611 other Republicans lost an election.
- Evil Kneivel finally ran out of cheap words and did not make it over the canyon (Ho Hum).
- Swensen's Magic Markets got their new store (replaces old store) on Main Street open and off to a good start.
- The price of sugar went up $30 per hundred and then went down $30 per hundred.
- South Vietnamese people suddenly became not worth helping anymore. (like Sen. Church said all along).
- 62,100 new Arab millionaires materialized out of thin air (or crude oil).
- The Supreme Court authorized millions of murders (they call it legalized abortion.)
- Politicians are STILL spending our money faster than we can make it.

TWIN FALLS — All communities in Twin Falls County are geared for Saturday's Johnny Horizon cleanup.

This was announced by general chairman William Chancery following a final planning meeting Tuesday night in the county judicial building. Some areas, including Buhl, Filer and Hansen, can use more volunteer workers.

Clean-up crews will meet at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in their respective communities. Anyone needing a work assignment or litter container is invited to be at the old hospital building in Twin Falls, the headquarters.

They may also meet in Hollister, Murtaugh, Hansen, Kimberly, Buhl, Filer or Chastater at 8:30 a.m. to volunteer assistance. Darrell Helder, county sanitation officer, said:

He said the committee is encouraging families to work together in the project.

The Bureau of Land Management, co-sponsors of the event, will provide communication trucks and coordinate the field work.

Chaney said the Shrine Club in Twin Falls assisted in procuring food for a noon luncheon to be served free to all volunteers.
